

Nagarjuna's PRECIOUS GARLAND

(RIN-CHEN 'PHRENG-BA, SKT. RATNAVALI)

Nagarjuna was born 400 years after Buddha passed away and is renowned for his penetrating analysis of reality. Through his vast insight, we get glimpses of the Prajna-paramita and the very essence of the Buddha's teaching. In the Precious Garland, Nagarjuna offers intimate guidance to perfect personal happiness, develop compassion, and realize emptiness. As Nagarjuna encourages, these practices will ultimately release us from the suffering of Samsara into Enlightenment.

From the beginning of the Precious Garland, when Nagarjuna pays homage to Buddha as the being who freed himself from all negative afflictions, he interweaves advice for the development of compassion and the wisdom of realizing emptiness. It is clear that the two views form a harmonious path to a state of supreme service for all.
